PREFACE

Ch. Devi Lal State Institute of Engg. & Technology, Panniwala Mota (Sirsa) was established by Government of Haryana in the year 2003 to promote the study and research in the field of Engineering, Technology and Science. The college was named after (Late) Chaudhary Devi Lal, the former Deputy Prime Minister of India, who belonged to this very western area of State Haryana. The College is situated at NH-9 at a distance of 22 km from Sirsa and 280km from Delhi. Though situated in Haryana, the Sirsa district adjoins both Punjab and Rajasthan states and has great potential for developing into a centre of academic excellence to cater the needs of the students belonging not only to Haryana state, but also to those, coming from other states of India.

All the hostels are under the overall supervision of the Director-Principal of the College. He is assisted with the team of Chief Warden and Wardens. At present, there is one girls hostel of 223 capacity. Wi-Fi, Common room, T.V. room and gymnasium facilities are provided to the inmates. Sports facilities such as Football, volley ball, badminton and athletics is also available for the inmates for the leisure time.

Directors Message

I welcome all the girls hostel residents for better hostel life which may not be like your home but at the same time will be quite similar to that. Hostel life is an important part of any student as it provides enormous opportunities to learn and become independent. Ch. Devi Lal State Institute Engineering & Technology, Panniwala Mota, Sirsa Provide State-of – the-art infrastructure, good governance, improved teaching-learning processes, conducive and peaceful environment and most important very good hostel facilities for girls students for better learning environment.

The Institute is making countless efforts to provide good infrastructure including quality food, internet connectivity through Wi-Fi system, security and other basic needs in the hostel. Hostel life is important for holistic development of the student and for developing them independent and responsible citizens independently. Meeting with people from different regions, countries & cultures build you a person with versatile personality that makes you learn new things naturally.

I extend my best wishes to every student who come to college and stay in hostel.

Chief Warden Message

A hostel is a home away from home. I am delighted to welcome the students to the girls' hostel of CDLSIET. It has always been our endeavor to make the stay of residents safe and comfortable. The welfare of the students in the campus is of utmost importance for us. I am extremely pleased to welcome you all to be a part of CDLSIET family that strives to provide a homely and healthy atmosphere with complete safety and security in the hostel. The hostel life promotes the integral development of body, mind and spirit and encourages several desirable traits in students like sharing, caring and adjusting to community living and provides more time and scope for molding the personality and character of the students. I ensure that the students get a calm, clean, green and relaxing atmosphere. However, the residents are also liable to maintain decorum in the hostels, keep their surroundings clean and refrain from many unlawful activities. Living in a hostel presupposes high degree of integrity, consciousness, cooperation, tolerance and hard work for a bright future and good image of our institution. I wish a fruitful stay to the residents of CDLSIET hostels and I envisage a promising and prosperous career for you all.

Inspiration

Capacity Building

When I visualize the five minds of the future (1. Disciplinary mind, 2. Synthesizing mind, 3. Creative mind, 4. Respectful mind, 5. Ethical mind), I have a message for all the teachers and students. Nurturing all the five minds is possible, if you build the following five capacities among the youth. What are those five capacities? The five capacities are: research and inquiry, creativity and innovation, use of high technology, entrepreneurial and moral leadership are the five capacities required to be built through the education process.

Research and enquiry: The 21st century is about the management of all the knowledge and information we have generated and the value addition we bring to it. We must give our students the skills with which they find a way through the sea of knowledge that we have created and continue with life long learning. Today, we have the ability, through technology, to really and truly teach ourselves to become the life-long learners. This is required for sustained economic development

Creativity and innovation: The management of knowledge in the 21st century is beyond the capacity of a single individual. The amount of information that we have around is overwhelming. The management of knowledge therefore must move out of the realm of the individual and shift into the realm of the networked groups. The students must learn how to manage knowledge collectively. When the information is networked the power and utility of the information grows as square as stated by Metcalfe's law. Information that is static does not grow. In the new digital economy information that is circulated creates innovation and contributes to national wealth.

Capacity to use high technology: Every student in our colleges should learn to know how to use the latest technologies for aiding their learning process. Colleges should equip themselves with adequate computing equipment, laboratory equipment, and Internet facilities and provide an environment for the students to enhance their learning ability. In the midst of all of the technological innovations and revolutions we cannot think that the role of the teachers will be diminished. In fact the teacher will become even more important and the whole world of education will become teacher assisted and would help in "tele-porting" the best teacher to every nook and corner of the country and propagate the knowledge. There is a great opportunity and need for content generation in many fields of education which can be used all over the country.

Entrepreneurship: The aptitude for entrepreneurship should be cultivated right from the beginning and in the University environment. We must teach our students to take calculated risks for the sake of larger gain, but within the ethos of good business. They should also cultivate a disposition to do things right. This capacity will enable them to take up challenging tasks later.

Moral leadership: Moral leadership involves two aspects. First it requires the ability to have compelling and powerful dreams or visions of human betterment. Moral leadership requires a disposition to do the right thing and influence others also to do right things. In sum, inquiry, creativity, technology, entrepreneurial and moral leadership are the five capacities required to be built through the education process. I would suggest, all the educational institutions to consider carving out a six months programme from the overall time available for the graduate and post-graduate programme. In this period the students should be equipped with knowledge on subjects like leadership, finance, marketing, inter-personal relationship, negotiation, entrepreneurship and ethical values. The students should be provided a certificate or a diploma along with the professional degree. This type of education will equip the youth with employable skills needed by the industry and also give the confidence to the youth to take up entrepreneurship as an independent venture.

If we develop in all our students these five capacities, we will produce "Autonomous Learner" a self-directed, self controlled, lifelong learner who will have the capacity to both, respect authority and at the same time is capable of questioning authority, in an appropriate manner.

These are the leaders who would work together as a "Self-organizing Network" and transform any nation into a prosperous nation. The most important part of the education is to imbibe the confidence among the student is the spirit of "we can do it".
